

Anoshua Chaudhuri (Ph.D from University of Washington) is a Health Economist and an Associate Professor in the Economics department in the College of Business at San Francisco State University, USA. Her research is in health, development and family economics with a focus on evaluating impacts of health policies and programs on household resource allocation towards elderly and children. Her papers have been published in journals such as Economic Development and Cultural Change, Social Science and Medicine, Health Policy, Journal of Family and Economic Issues, Children and Youth Services Review and have been accepted for presentations in professional conferences nationally and internationally, invited as book chapters, and cited by top economists in the field. She teaches undergraduate courses in Microeconomics, Health Economics and Economics of Gender and graduate courses in Microeconomics, Health Economics and Public Policy. She is originally from Kolkata with an undergraduate degree from Jadavpur University and a masters degree from Delhi School of Economics, and currently lives in San Francisco, California.

